

The main goal of this diploma thesis was to present a critical observation of the manner in which selected Czech print news-media assess the media representation of success as social norm and socially constructed phenomenon.